

Tinley Lions Launch Yard and Garden Prize Contest

To improve and beautify the home grounds of the Tinley Park community, to awaken all citizens to the desire for better living and to provide an outdoor living room for every family, a Yard and Garden Contest will be conducted in Tinley Park, beginning this spring, it was decided at the meeting of the Tinley Park Lions club who are sponsoring the campaign.

Every home owner in the village and from Central avenue west to Harlem avenue and from the north end of Bremen township to the south boundary line of the township is invited to enter this contest, which is a part of a great national movement sweeping over the country. There will be no entry fee and the contest is so arranged that the owner of a small home will have an equal chance with the wealthier resident in the prize competition.

By improving and beautifying their home grounds thru proper planting of shrubbery, trees and flowers, people of this community will accomplish many definite results, as has been shown by the experience of every city in which a Yard and Garden Contest was held last year.

Better living quarters, a healthful environment both for adults as well as for growing children, increasing the efficiency of the home thru the growing of an outdoor living room, adding actual dollars to the value of every property improved by proper planting, cleaning up alleys and streets and vacant lots, removing garbage and rubbish and eventually beautifying the entire community so that it comes to justly deserve the title of "City Beautiful" are results achieved elsewhere and are goals which it is confidently expected Tinley will reach thru the Yard and Garden Contest.

To make easy the work of every one who enters this big contest, every assistance will be given by the committee in charge.

Constructive suggestions on how to improve the appearance of one's place will be freely given by the contest committee and by the judges. The latter who will be members of the Tinley Park Garden club, will make personal inspections of each home and ground entered in the big competition.

All wishing to get into this contest should get in touch with H. C. Vogt who has charge of the entry blanks. All entries must be in by May 15th.

"You Win if You Lose" has been selected as the slogan of the campaign for even if an entrant does not win a prize, such improvement will be made in the appearance of the premises that the home owner in question will consider that his time spent in beautifying the home grounds was well invested.

TINLEY PARK P. T. A. TO HOLD BUNCO PARTY
The Tinley Park P. T. A. will sponsor a bunco, 500 and pinocle game at the Tinley Park school auditorium Friday, May 6 at 8 p. m. All are welcome.

There will be an attendance contest in which the person having the most friends he or she invited present, will receive an extra prize. All wishing to enter this contest should notify Mrs. Wm. Wannemacher, Tinley Park before next Thursday.

Play At St. John's Mokena, May 6th

The big attraction in Mokena next week will be the play "The Singing School" to be presented by the Y. P. S. of the St. John Evangelical church in the church parlors on the night of May 6th. The program in full of this play will be found on another page in this issue. Be sure and come. The play starts 8 o'clock standard time.

Tinley Operetta To Be Big Event

"Tulip Time" an operetta which the Tinley Park Ladies Chorus will sponsor May 19 and 20th at the Tinley Legion Community hall is demanding much work on the part of the chorus right now and promises to be the outstanding event of this spring season.

Tinley Firemen to Enter Contest

The Southern Cook County and Will County Community Firemen's Association held a big gathering at Thornton Monday night with the Thornton Fire Department in charge as hosts. About 192 firemen were present. The Standard Oil Company had an oil demonstration and a movie of a new type of fire alarm was shown. The meeting was held in the village hall. The University of Illinois will award a prize for the best fire department work in June and the various communities are going to send their best men to Thornton to practice for the event. The Tinley Fire Department will also compete.

Spring Musical at Mokena School One Of Special Merit

One of the finest entertainments given in Mokena this year, was that of the Spring Musical which was presented by the pupils of the Mokena public and high school in the school auditorium last Friday evening. All the grades and the high school took part with each student having a part and doing it exceedingly well. It showed much fine work on the part of Miss Mae Baker, director, and also much talent on the part of the students.

The little "Johnny Jump-ups" were true to their name as was also the "Barnyard Music" which seemed to need "The Weather Wisdom" and "The Rain, and Clearing", which was well acted out. The spring weather brought out the familiar "Hurdy-Gurdy Man". The planting of a tree was so well done, we feel sure it will grow. A very pretty folk dance, "The Hollanders" was pleasing in their blue and white costumes and even rhythm. The "Chinese Laundrymen" worked very strenuously over their rub boards and by the fine spirit which they showed, we know they have no depression worries, as they seemed to have plenty of work.

There were also several readings, solos and piano solos by different pupils and the Girls and Boys Glee Clubs presented a number of selections, among them being, "Glow Worm", "Bells of St. Mary's", "Heaven" and "Good Night Sweetheart".

The climax of the evening came when a patriotic drill, "Columbia" was given by the girls of the intermediate grades with the Girls Glee Club furnishing the musical background. It appeared to be perfect from the audience point of view, the marching was in perfect step and the picture it presented was very lovely.

Much credit is to be given to the teachers for their untiring efforts in the training of the students. Miss Mae Baker had charge of the music, Miss Elizabeth Krusemark, Mrs. Eleanor Ferguson and Miss Mildred Doig of the costumes and literary parts with Miss Doig presiding at the piano, and over all was the dependable consul and help of the principle, Prof. W. E. McCleery, who, although unseen at the time, was useful in many ways and places.

A large attendance was present among which we noted with pleasure County Superintendent of Schools, August Maue and wife who seemed to enjoy the program very much.

New Barber Shop In Mokena

N. A. McNaul and R. A. Stevenson have taken over the barbershop in the Blue Store building in Mokena recently vacated by Frank Clevenger, the present News-Bulletin man. Messrs. McNaul and Stevenson are experienced barbers and would greatly appreciate the patronage of the community and surrounding territory.

Orland Board Sets May 2nd as Date For Cleanup Day

The Orland Park village board met Monday night and the newly elected and re-elected officers were sworn in. Considerable business was transacted and reports were read. The water department report was read and showed that this department is doing fine and will soon be out of the red.

Plans were discussed for oiling the streets in the village the latter part of May.

The annual clean up day date was set for May 2nd. The job for hauling and disposing of the rubbish was awarded to Kendall Robinson of Orland Park for $40. The job was let out on bids, his bid being the lowest. Other bids were as follows:

Kimmel & Uthe, $44.50; Orville Mitchell $45; Davidson & Co., $50.

Tinley Park P. T. A. News

By L. E. Wendt
Just a reminder that our next regular meeting will be the first Friday of May, the 6th at 1:30 p. m. at the school. Please all members be present. Also don't forget the same evening at 8 p. m., is the night you should all attend the card and bunco party to be given by the P. T. A. It is not for our benefit alone, but for the school and your children as well so won't you please come? Sure you will. Thank you.

The officers of the P. T. A. will be installed at the afternoon meeting.

Two Flower Shops Open in Tinley Park

Two new business places are being established, both floral shops. Hilding Anderson and Clarence Sander, both of Tinley Park, have opened a flower shop in the Detwiler building. They have a very cozy office and display room and have a fine display of flowers and plants. They are prepared to handle floral orders for all occasions. They have named their shop "The Tinley Park Gardens". They expect to raise all their nursery stock on a 22 acre farm close to Tinley Park.

James Marti of Mokena has been engaged as local representative for Mokena, New Lenox and Frankfort.

The other shop will be conducted by John H. Oesterreich of Washington Heights in the Vogt building at one time occupied by Miss H. Kennedy as a millinery shop. The grand opening of this shop located at 6785 West 174th Street will be held on Saturday, April 30th and an appropriate gift will be presented to every one visiting this establishment on the opening day.

Mr. Oesterreich is an expert florist and has had 20 years experience.

Tinley Garden Club News

The year has tied the flowers, in boxes quaint and gray. With rain for cards to hold them, Lest they should slip away.

The boxes locked with raindrops Have April for a key, And sudden showers will bring May flowers, As you and I shall see.

The Tinley Park Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Frank Baldwin on Friday, April 15th. Mrs. Kathryn Fulton read a paper on the "Peach Tree." The Ladies who took the bus to the Flower Show enjoyed the trip very much. Mr. Uhlman's bid for the work to be done on the Garden plot at the depot was accepted. Mrs. Lulu Rodgers and Mrs. Clara Goessel gave a report on Junior Garden Club activities. After refreshments were served, Mrs. Baldwin entertained the ladies delightfully with some piano selections.

Orland Hears About 1933 Fair

The chicken supper and apron bazaar held Wednesday evening in the Orland Park M. E. church parlors was a decided success. At the close of the dinner a musical program was given and an interesting feature of the evening was an illustrated talk by Mr. Gorbey on the 1933 Century of Progress to be held in Chicago.

Orland to Decide Festival Date

Plans are being formed by the business men of Orland Park and Orland Township for a big spring festival. Already a number of them have made plans to enter. An invitation is extended to all business men to attend a meeting to be held at the Orland town hall next Monday evening at 8 o'clock to definitely establish a date.

Dairymen Hear New Plan Explained

The Pure Milk Association members of Frankfort township met at the St. John church parlors in Mokena Wednesday night to hear Mr. Dickson of the Association outline a plan of insurance the association is now working on. The plan is to assess the membership from 2 to 5 cents each per month with which to raise a fund to be used as an insurance fund. For instance if the market is over crowded and a member has his milk shut off he would be paid for same by the association so he will not be subject to a loss as is now the case. The Frankfort local was much impressed with the plan and 96 signed up for it.

A coon hound race will be held on the George Frank farm 7 miles north east of Lockport and 1-2 mile west of Kinman's Golf Course on Sunday, May 8th starting at 11 a. m. sharp.

Mokena Property Being Beautified And Improved

A wave of civic pride has swept over Mokena this spring and many of the residents are beautifying the yards and lawns of their homes. A few of the improvements that have been noted this week are:

Mrs. Wm. Getz has had a very cute Dutch windmill placed in her yard, also pergolas and a cute little fence in front of the house. All this work has been done by Andrew Porier of Mokena who also builds nifty bird houses.

Harry Schoen is beautifying the Neithammer place with cute flower gardens and pergolas. He also has built a cute little fence around his flower garden.

Alderman Julius Oswald has just built a curb from his front yard sidewalk to the street line.

C. J. Sippel has planted trees in the park space in front of his residence and has also beautified his yard.

Mrs. A. C. Scheblich is having her property on Front street repaired and a new garage built.

Julius Grothendick has put in a new lawn and has planted many flowers.

The Mokena Garden Club is making Mokena rose minded as a great many rose bushes have been planted and if they will all bloom Mokena will be a "village of roses". The Garden Club has also beautified the local depot grounds.

The village board itself has caught the improvement fever and has done its share to improve the village by stoning a portion of First street and two streets on the south side of the village. None of these streets have had a shovelful of stone on them as long as the village has been laid out, fully a hundred years ago. The property owners on these streets certainly appreciate being pulled out of the mud.

It is to be hoped that these improvements and beautifying plans continue and there is no reason why Mokena cannot be made a progressive and beautiful village so that it can vie with any of the other suburban towns along the Rock Island.

If all of the Mokena residents will do this wonders can be accomplished to the satisfaction of all. Civic pride is a force if properly applied.

If there are any other improvements or beauty spots around town we would like to know about it so we can give them proper mention.

E. P. Krapp has a curious rock in his front yard which is claiming a great deal of attention. This rock, weighing a ton and a half was found on Mr. Krapp's farm north of Mokena while excavation work was going on for the S. W. Highway. The rock has a peculiar formation on it in the form of a snake with a large snake head outlined. It is not known if the formation is a petrified snake or if the rock was naturally formed that way. This rock would make an interesting study for some geologist.

Find Foxes on Orland Farm

Ten little baby red foxes were found in a fox hole on the old shaker farm on 199th street by the sons of Henry Yunker who is tenanting this farm. They were found Monday. The old foxes were not to be seen. The litter of foxes were about the size of kittens.

Louis Schroeder Killed by Auto

Louis Schroeder, aged 40 years of Monee and well known in Frankfort was fatally injured on Route 49 in Monee last Friday night when he was struck by an automobile being driven by a traveling salesman from Danville. The accident happened on the main town crossing. Mr. Schroeder was removed to the St. James hospital in Chicago Heights where he died Sunday night.

Mr. Schroeder retired from active farming about 15 years ago and located in Monee.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from Monee to the St. Peter Evangelical church in Green Garden of which he was a member. Rev. Mr. Blasberg officiated.

Surviving him are two brothers, George of Frankfort and Charles of Chicago Heights; two sisters, Mrs. Emma Kampe and Mrs. Carrie Christopol, both of Herscher, Illinois and a host of relatives and friends. Burial was in the cemetery adjoining the church.

Mokena Dance Pavilion Opens Saturday, May 7th

Mokena will be on the map in a pleasure way beginning with Saturday night May 7th when the Mokena Men's Club will hold their opening dance of the 1932 dancing season in the Cappel Grove south of Mokena on the Wolf Road. The music for the opening dance will be furnished by Bob Maue and his seven orioles.

A feature of this season's dances is that the admission price has been reduced from $1 per couple to 75c per couple. Dances will be held every Saturday night thruout the summer and on holidays. Watch for the dance adv. in this paper each week.

Everyone invited to the big opening dance, May 7th.

An Appreciation

Joliet, Ill., April 26, 1932
News-Bulletin,
Mokena, Ill.
Dear Sir:

I should like to use some of the space of your paper to express my appreciation of the splendid Spring Musical given in the Mokena school last Friday evening.

It was very well rendered and showed much ability on the part of the teachers, especially that of Miss Baker, who directed the musical part, and also showed much talent on the part of the scholars.

The evening was an enjoyable one, and I was glad to be present.

Yours truly,
August Maue,
County Superintendent of Schols.

"You can be shrewder, Alan! You can make him walk into it. Let him think he's got you beaten and hopeless. Hide what you feel. And don't antagonize Superintendent Williamson."

She held his hand a moment in her warm clasp, thinking of her father lying dead at Resolution, of Alan's noble struggle to save him, of Haskell breaking her father's will to live. It was some solace to know she had helped Alan plan a trap for the guilty inspector, a deadly trap if Haskell only walked into it.

As she quietly wished him good luck, in her heart she was fervently saying to him, "God go with you, Alan." And because she had passionately resolved not to see him again before she left, she meant her words not only for the stormy hour ahead of him, but for all the years of his life.

Alan strode into the cabin in a savage fighting mood. He had risen from a sick bed to come to Endurance before Williamson left, and he had sworn he was going to crush Haskell. The inspector had forced him out of the Mounted; had caused Larry to be crippled for life; had refused protection to Joyce in her desperate need; had made a scapegoat of Dave MacMillan to save his face; and more than anyone on earth he was responsible for that sorry tragedy at Resolution.

Almost the only hope Alan had was that trap which he and Joyce had planned—an idea born in Joyce's quick brain and developed between them during the three days she had nursed him.

When he went in, he found Williamson and Haskell sitting at the desk, waiting. Haskell did not move; but Williamson, considerate of his wounds, drew up a chair and invited him to sit down.

"Won't you give us the story of your patrol, Baker?" he requested kindly.

Alan countered: "My story doesn't begin with this patrol. It begins last fall, when this gentleman here came down north. I want to tell it clean, from then till now."

"That's your right," Williamson assented.

Alan hoped that his story, by the sheer blunt truth of it, would carry conviction. But when he finished, the old officer did not comment. The silence was foreboding. Almost in desperation, Alan took up a couple matters that lay very near his heart.

"There's two or three favors I want to ask of you, sir. Since they're not in my own behalf, you may agree to them. One is about Chink Woolley, the man we brought in. I want to put in a word for him. He deserves heavy punishment but he shouldn't be hanged. He gave us some priceless information. We might never have saved Joyce MacMillan if he hadn't. If it's impossible for me to be present at his trial, I want to turn over to you an affidavit in his behalf. Then, about Featherof, my partner in this patrol. He stole some government property and broke some flying regulations. But he made the whole thing possible, he threw in with me without a thought of pay, he risked his life half a dozen times. We're in position to restore that property or else pay for it in full. Will you get Featherof out of this jam?"

"How about yourself, Baker?"

"Well, I don't want to be jailed, if I can help it. But I suppose your favors will stretch just so far. I was the instigator, and if anybody has to pay, I'm the one."

Williamson was thoughtful. Few times in his career had he ever allowed motive, however worthy, to be excuse for breaking the law. But as he glanced at Baker, wounded, maimed in one hand, still pale from loss of blood, he thought what a heartless travesty of justice it would be if Baker were imprisoned. Whatever the truth of his trouble with Haskell, the great fact remained that he had gone on a thankless and prodigious patrol and had run those criminals to earth.

"I'll do what I can for you both," he promised, with no reluctance. "When I go back outside I'll talk to the Edmonton officials and try to get those charges nol-prossed. But you and Featherof set to restoring that property."

Alan promised: "We won't fail you on that. It's mighty fine and square of you." After a moment, he went on: "Considering all you've agreed to, I hate to ask still another favor. But I've got to. I've got to speak up for Hardsock and Pedneault. They have charges against them, serious and true charges. But there's this to be said, sir. Neither man deserted. They both intended to return here the moment our patrol ended. They rendered a tremendous service to the Force. They were true to duty in the highest sense of the word. Are you going to look at the good they did, or at nothing but the bad?"

Williamson did not answer. He felt the human justice of Alan's appeal. It seemed to him that the matter went deeper than a question of insubordination. Those men had been under Baker's sway, and he knew what a powerful influence Baker had over his men.

Thinking deeply, he gazed through the window, down upon the dark river. In this tangled affair, it was a sore task to judge wisely, to do the right thing. Baker's long patrol, his indomitable courage in going after these men, his relentless drive in hammering his daring plan through to success—the whole thing was a splendid feat. In his forty years the old officer had never seen a more magnificent piece of work. It was like Baker, like the brilliant sergeant whom he once had trusted and fought for.

But the rest of that story, his trouble with Haskell—Williamson did not accept that as true. From start to finish Baker's account was an utter conflict with Haskell's; and to the stern old officer, judging with impartial mind, Haskell's story seemed more credible. Quite plainly Baker harbored a personal hostility which probably had warped and twisted his story out of all semblance to the truth.

One thing Williamson did know beyond any doubting: Baker's account clashed with Haskell's all along the line. One of these two men was an out-and-out liar.

In the tightening silence, waiting for Williamson to start probing, Haskell looked out along the terrace and saw a thing which struck him with chill premonition. The doorway of the mission hospital opened; Pedneault and Bill Hardsock came out, bringing Larry Young with them. Bill on one side, Pedneault on the other, half-leading, half-carrying their crippled partner, they were making straight for the cabin.

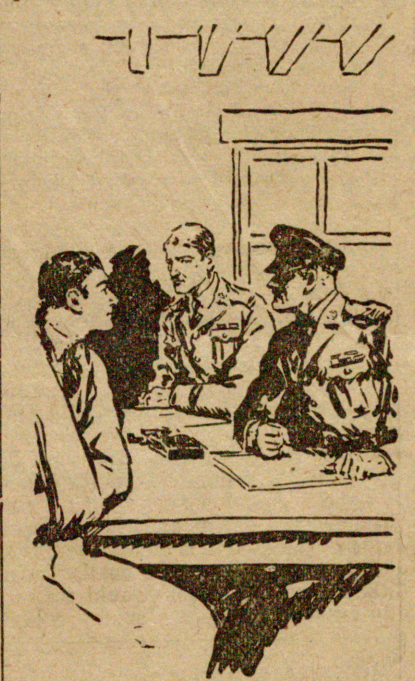

When they trod into the room and Williamson heard them, he turned, frowning and demanded:

"What do you men want?"

"Sir, we came here to put our paddle in," Bill stated bluntly. "We knew you were thrashing out this trouble between Alan and the inspector."

"Your counsel wasn't asked. This matter is between Baker and Inspector Haskell."

"Bill, don't try to run a buck," Alan interposed, fearful that this unexpected move of his three men might kill any chance to trap Haskell. "If the superintendent doesn't want you here, obey him and go."

Bill stubbornly refused. He said to Williamson: "You've got a name, sir, for giving every buck cop and non-cop in your division a square cut and seeing all sides of an argument. I don't think you'll kick us out without hearing what we've got to say. This is as much our fight as Alan's. We've had to pay, too, for the inspector's acts. Here's one of us crippled for life because the inspector hog-tied us on that patrol with some fool orders. After a thing like that, do we have to shut up and take it and not even be allowed to—?"

"Sit down!" Williamson bade them. "I'm going to get to the bottom of this. When your time comes I'll hear what you've got to say. Now Baker, I want you to answer some questions. What made you split your detail on that first patrol?"

"Haskell ordered me to, sir. He ordered me to follow both branches. When I objected, he threatened to bust me and keep me here at the post."

"That's a lie!" Haskell challenged. "I allowed him to do as he thought best. He purposely made a failure of that patrol. I don't ask you to take my word. Corporal Whipple was here in the cabin, and heard our talk. And Baker, over his signed statement, admitted to responsibility."

"What proof have you got, Baker?" Williamson demanded.

Alan kept silent, deliberately allowing his silence to damn him. Williamson's probe was leading in the right direction, leading toward that deadly trap.

To Alan's consternation Bill Hardsock burst out: "Proof? It's—It's blue blazes! Alan was half sick, all the way up the Aloska, because of them orders. He felt he was being forced to take us men into a terrible danger. We all knew it was crazy to split up—"

Williamson silenced him. "You're merely making an assertion, corporal. You have no proof. Baker, do you admit responsibility for that patrol?"

Alan shook his head. "No, I—I don't," he stammered.

Haskell smiled. He had Baker on the run.

Williamson reminded: "Baker, you signed a statement of responsibility. Whipple was a witness."

Alan pleaded, "Sir, that statement

... When we came back—yes, I signed it. But I—I had to."

"You had to?"

"Yes, to get out of the Mounted. He wouldn't let me buy out unless I did sign."

"Why under heaven did you want to buy out all that fast and furious?"

"I wanted to be free," Alan led on, step by cautious step. "I wanted to go after those men."

"Baker, look here," Williamson said sternly. "You infer you wanted to go after those men so badly that you were willing to buy out, cut off your record and sign a lie. Why then wouldn't you co-operate with Haskell to get them?"

"Well, sir, he—he wouldn't co-operate."

"I can't believe that. He tried to help you even afterward—after you bought out and were on a private venture."

"When was that?" Alan queried. "At En Traverse lake."

"So he was trying to help us. I didn't—ah—have that impression at the time, sir."

"He even shot signals for you to wait."

Bill Hardsock swore luridly. "Of all the fork-tongued lies, that's the best of 'em all!"

Alan allowed the lie to go unchallenged. If Haskell got by with that one, he would be bold and unwary.

"But sir," he led on, "when I came back from the Aloska patrol, he wouldn't co-operate with me then. He didn't seem much interested. I don't think, in getting those bandits."

"Not much interested?" Haskell echoed, with a great show of astonishment. "Sir, I wanted him to make a patrol to the Inconnu river. But he was in a temper. He wouldn't even listen to my suggestion."

A wild elation surged through Alan. One more step and Haskell was doomed! He fought down his elation and fidgeted uneasily in his chair.

Williamson bore down on him hard. "Baker, answer that charge! Haskell suggested a patrol to the Inconnu. In my opinion that was a splendid suggestion. It was almost the only hope of capturing those criminals. You wouldn't listen to him. How, then, can you assert you were forced to buy out?"

"He didn't. . . . It wasn't him that made that suggestion," Alan stammered weakly. "I think—I believe I made that suggestion myself. But he wouldn't let me go."

"That's a lie!" Haskell pounced upon him. "I suggested it. I begged him to make that patrol."

Alan looked at Haskell. "You suggested that Inconnu patrol? It was your idea?"

Haskell nodded. "I did. Whipple can witness it." He was smiling openly in triumph.

All Alan's hesitation dropped away from him. There was no longer need to dissimulate. He turned to Williamson. "You heard him. You heard what he said. He told you he suggested that Inconnu trip. He just repeated it and he said Whipple was witness. Don't let him back out of it now."

"I don't have to back out of any thing," Haskell snapped. He was staring in sudden uneasiness at Baker. "Yes, I heard him," Williamson answered. "What about it?"

Alan rose slowly to his feet, pulling himself up to his full lanky and powerful height. In that moment when he realized Haskell was caught in the deadly trap, his mind whipped back to Joyce's room where he had lain through weary hours of doubt and pain, and where he and she had carefully plotted this trap. He felt a wordless tender gratitude to Joyce; this stratagem was hers more than his; her quick brain had been the first to see its crushing possibilities.

"Inspector, you say you asked me to lead that Inconnu detail. You say you suggested it. You say it occurred to you that the bandits would escape by that river. I say you are a liar! I propose to prove you're a liar."

He paused a moment, then raised his right hand and pointed at the wall chart behind Haskell's desk.

"The Inconnu river is not shown on that map of yours, inspector. You tried to find out from that Indian, Little Otter, where the river is. You didn't know. You don't know now. How could you suggest sending a patrol to a river when you haven't the slightest knowledge of its location? Show up there to that chart, you, and show us the Inconnu!"

Haskell sprang to his feet, snarling at Alan. "I don't take orders from you!" He was fighting like a trapped wolf. His panic, his livid face, betrayed him.

"Then consider it an order from me!" Williamson commanded. "Show me where the Inconnu is!"

Height of Waves

Waves rarely have a greater height than 50 feet, but they appear to be much higher when seen from a ship in the open ocean. These waves frequently have a greater height, however, in breaking upon a rocky coast. The highest wave reported by the hydrographic office of the United States Navy department was encountered in the North Atlantic ocean, December 22, 1922, by the British steamship Majestic. Its height was estimated at 80 feet.

IDEA OF ARMORED VESSELS IN 1861

Naval Officials Quick to See Possibilities.

One of those interesting minor notes on naval history was supplied in a Lowell lecture at Boston when Professor Baxter, of Harvard, traced from a re-examination of the original documents, the development of the navy's ironclad program at the beginning of the Civil war—a program of which the Monitor was merely the most celebrated product.

Mr. Baxter, according to the Boston Transcript, has annihilated the charge of obstructive traditionalism sometimes leveled at the Navy department in connection with the Monitor. Capt. Liddell Hart's dictum that war offices always begin a war at a point somewhat behind that which they had reached at the end of the preceding one apparently did not apply to the navy in 1861. Even before the fall of Sumter the navy was considering the first of a flood of proposals for the construction of ironclad men-of-war, and the chief of the bureau of construction and repair was soon to advocate not one but a whole fleet of these radical innovations.

Many people—Donald McKay, the creator of the great clipper ships, was one—were advocating armored vessels, and the idea of turret mountings for the guns had already been advanced by a British naval officer the year before. The Navy department went to work in a methodical fashion suggestive of World war days; it convened a board which studied the proposals and by September was able to recommend three different types for experimental construction. One of them was the especially radical Monitor. She had the luck first to meet the test of battle and to pass it magnificently, and after that the construction of the large fleet of double-turreted monitors went on rapidly. The navy was able to take the very latest ideas available, study them, adopt and test models and then go into "quantity production" for the winning of the war.

The story is not without its modern application. It is an earlier instance of the "time lag" essential in the development of any new weapon for war service—a phenomenon recently pointed out by a British writer, Victor Lefebvre, as a possible means for arriving at scientific disarmament systems. Another point is the fact that the navy, even with this prompt and intelligent handling of the situation, got what was actually rather a poor weapon as the result of the hastes of working under war pressure.

The Monitor's victory in her one battle was to influence our naval construction down to Spanish war days; actually, however, the raft idea, which was Ericsson's essential contribution, was not a sound one. The turret stayed, but the raft was not copied in other navies and finally disappeared in our own. But mistakes are unavoidable when a new type has to be built in large numbers all at once.—New York Herald Tribune.

Cataclysm

"Did you tell your father over the phone that we were engaged?"

"Yes, dear."

"What did he say?"

"Well, darling I couldn't tell whether he was replying or whether it was a breakdown on the line."

For 100% Health

THERE is something vibrant and magnetic about the truly healthy man or woman, who is satisfied and contented with life. That "something" attracts people. Wins confidence. Arouses and holds affection. This vitality and contentment of youth are priceless. Guard them with Fellows' Syrup, the fine old tonic which doctors recommend. It restores and strengthens. Improves appetite. You sleep better and feel better. Your vigor and endurance return. For just one week, try genuine Fellows' Syrup, which you can get at your druggist's. The results will amaze and delight you.

FELLOWS' SYRUP

WILL BE ISOLATED IN CANADIAN NORTH

Lonely Year Scheduled for Scientific Party.

Great Britain's share in next year's celebration of the jubilee of the Polar year will mean the isolation of a small party of scientific observers for about a year at a station in the north of Canada. During those winter months they will have no contact with the outside world. They are unlikely even to be in wireless communication. Their only transport will be dog sledges and their only chance of getting fresh food will depend on the success with which they can use the snow and ice for the purpose of refrigeration.

The party will go to their lonely post on the most northerly arm of the Great Slave lake as soon as the ice breaks up at the end of June. They will reach the settlement of Fort Rae in time to make preparations and do some bartering with the Indians before the winter settles down again on this wild country and the Indians go off once more on the trail for the pelts by which they make a living. Some of them may drift back to the settlement again toward Christmas time and may have moose and caribou flesh to barter for flour or implements. If that can be kept fresh by burying it in the snow the party's rations will be the more varied and nutritious, but if the cold storage is unsatisfactory they will have to content themselves with tinned goods. They will be living in an Indian reserve and will therefore not be at liberty to shoot the only animals which might serve as food.

This settlement is little farther north than the Shetlands, yet it is one of the coldest places in the world. In the winter it is not unusual to find from 100 to 110 degrees of frost. Fort Rae is a very primitive settlement. It consists of a Hudson's Bay trader, one rival trader who is an Assyrian and another who is a Russian, one Canadian mounted policeman, and a Roman Catholic missionary. It is open to the rest of the world for about six weeks from the beginning of July, and even then it cannot be reached by any regular transport service.

Puzzles

"I understand you and your wife never exchange a cross word," remarked the observant friend.

"That's right," answered Mr. Meekton. "The crossword puzzle is sufficiently interesting the way it is without trying to reduce it to home conversation."

Kind words cost no money. Don't hoard them, either.

Lifelong Warfare on Insect Pests

Award of the Capper gold medal "for distinguished service to agriculture," carrying an honorarium of $5,000, has been made to Dr. L. O. Howard, a government bug expert who, on a small official salary, has waged a lifelong battle against insect pests.

"He has made a great contribution to the present and future happiness of the American people," says the Woman's Home Companion in its announcement of the award. "He has for years been fighting the insects of all wars—the war against insects. Insects, as he has shown, steal two billion dollars a year from us. They nullify the labor of a million men."

"They reached their development millions of years ago. We are the newcomers on earth and our foothold is not yet sure. Doctor Howard believes that it is still possible that in some distant future the last living thing on the expiring earth may be a bug feeding on the last bit of plant life. Thus far, indeed, the insects have held their own against us. But we cannot doubt that mankind will eventually win."

Takes Seventeen Years for Locust to Mature

The 17-year locusts, as the insect known to science as the cicada is called, appears in the North more often than every 17 years, but this is due to the fact that there are several cycles of them in existence. The cicadas actually require 17 years to mature from the egg stage to the final stage of the full-grown insect. In the South the period is about four years shorter.

The adults lay the eggs in slits in the bark of twigs of trees. When the eggs hatch, the young is a nymph with legs, but no wings. They drop from the tree to the ground and, burrowing beneath the soil, reach the roots, where they find their sustenance during the years they are progressing toward maturity.

When the 17 years have been accomplished they work to the surface, and their shell coating splits, permitting the full-grown insect to emerge.

Motto From Washington

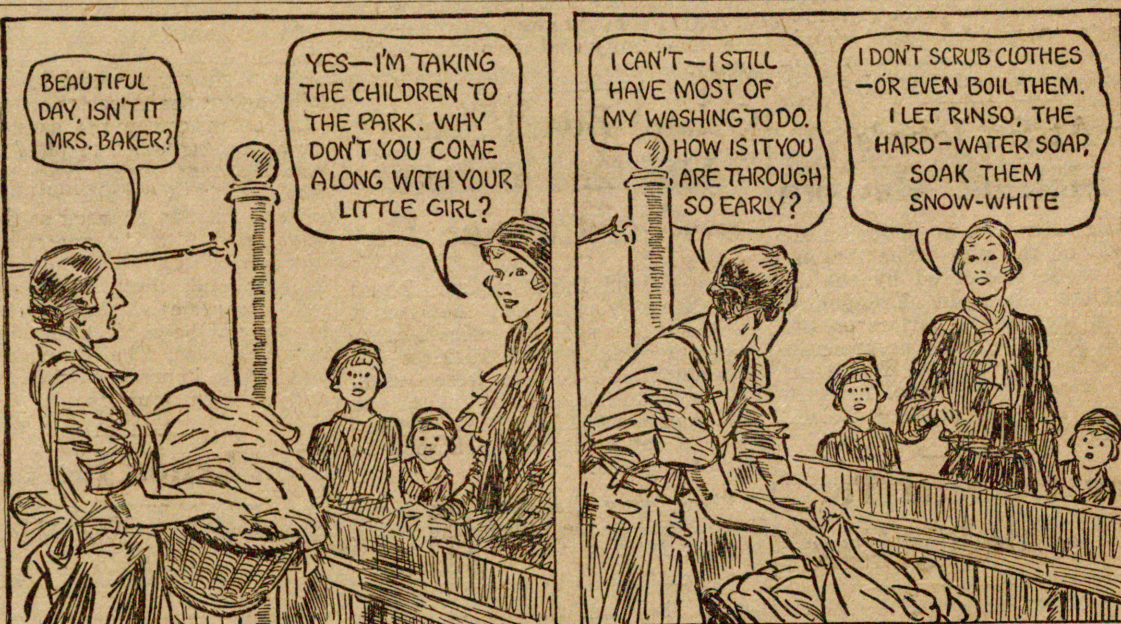

From the neglected sayings of George Washington comes this motto: "I had rather be on my farm than be emperor of the world."—Country Home.

"Color can speak," declares an artist. Sez hue!—Passing Show.

Clothes washed this way last much longer!

IT'S easy to understand why clothes washed the Rinsoway last much longer. They're soaked—not scrubbed. The dirt is gently loosened—so not forced out. Rinsoway used regularly means a big saving in household linens, children's clothes, towels. It means whiter, brighter washes, too.

Try it and see! And see what lively, long-lasting suds a little Rinsoway gives, even in hardest water. Twice as much, cup for cup, as from lightweight, puffed-up soaps. And no softener needed.

Makers of 40 famous washers recommend Rinsoway. Fine for dishes and all cleaning. Get the BIG package.

Historically Correct Sketches

IN the early autumn of 1751, a journey fraught with affectionate anxiety was undertaken on the high seas. In that year the devoted boy went with his half-brother Lawrence in quest of the latter's health to Barbados, a British possession in the West Indies. Here he contracted smallpox while a guest in the home of Major Clarke, governor of the island. No journey was ever made by Washington without its lesson. Though favored with rich soil, he found Barbados planters poor, which prompted him to resolve that he would ever be free from the enemy called Debt.

COMING events had begun to cast their shadows before. At the age of nineteen the young man was called to the Colonial capital at Williamsburg by Governor Dinwiddie and made adjutant general of militia for the Northern Division of Virginia. He set to work earnestly to stiffen the lax discipline of the militia, when again he was called to Williamsburg. On October 31, 1753, he rode away on a mission through the wilderness, bearing a message to the French at Fort La Boeuf commanding them to retire from disputed territory.

Manhattan defeated Mokena at Mokena in a baseball game on Monday, with a score of 5 to 0. Mokena made six hits and six errors while Manhattan made four hits and one error.

Batteries: Mokena—Muehler, Capel Cappel and McGovney.
Manhattan—Fitzgerald and Steber.

On Friday, April 29, the high school team will travel to Beecher for a game with the Beecher high school team.

Orland high school turned back the first invasion of their home diamond when they defeated Beecher high by a score of 9 to 1. Beecher jumped off to a run lead in their half of the first when two hits and an error gave them a run. In their half of the first, Orland got two men to base but foolish base-running ruined any attempt to score.

After the first inning, however, Nicolai allowed only two hits for Beecher and air-tight fielding kept the bases clear of hostile runners. Meanwhile Orland kept pecking away with one run in each of the second, third, fourth and fifth innings. In the sixth, the home team's consistent and steady work at the plate finally wore down the Beecher defense and five runs were chased across in the last two innings, making the final score nine to one.

On the fielding side, there was no weak spot in the Orland line-up; Especially brilliant was the work of Beagley at Third, Helting at second and Uthe at First. Leroy Cooper sent in to hold left field in the last two innings, showed a good deal of alertness and quickness in covering the area. Nicolai was untouchable after the first inning when he had a little trouble with control. He struck out thirteen men and had no trouble in bearing down when necessary. The big bats of Newcomb and Steinmetz were a constant source of worry to Beecher. Between them, they scored or drove in five runs.

This gives the squad a record of two wins and one loss.

The next game is at Monee.

FIRST SUBURBAN LEAGUE BALL GAME SUNDAY, MAY 8th

The opening game of a series of ball games of the Mid-West Suburban League takes place on Sunday, May 8th when the Matteson team plays at Manhattan. All the ball fans in this section are vitally interested in this and forth coming games.

Ladies are asked to bring either sandwiches or cake.

Word was received by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bostrom of the birth of a grand-daughter, April 23 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Johnson in Chicago. Mrs. Johnson was formerly Helen Bostrom.

Mrs. H. H. Sabin who underwent an operation recently at the Silver Cross hospital is expected to return home this week.

Mrs. Florenz Demkov underwent a major operation Friday at the Silver Cross hospital.

From Horse Stable To Constable

George was still panting when I interviewed him. He had on a pair of high tops, still looks the part of the horse trader of yesterday and still speaks in a hoarse voice. He is none other than the well known George R. Kennedy of New Lenox, constable.

"Well boy you asked for a horse story of interest.

"Here she be:
"About 25 years ago when the trading of horses was an art in itself, I drove to Joliet to do some shopping and had no intentions of doing any trading of any kind, but on the way home I met a man with a horse and being unable to pass without some word of comment as I always felt I knew every horse I met by their first name, I said to the man leading the mare 'Where did you get her?'

"He said 'That don't worry me at all, but what does worry me is how I am going to get rid of her as I haven't any feed and no money to buy feed for her.' He continued to inquire as to how he could dispose of the horse and at last offered to give me the mare just to get rid of the expense of feeding her. So my love for horses got the best of me and I could not think of a horse being taken to the rendering works, to become only grease and razor strops, so my sweet disposition got the best of me and I offered the man four one dollar bills and no exaggeration, that man almost broke a leg trying to get the $4 and left me so quickly I nearly caught cold from the draft he made when passing me in his speedy departure.

"There I was with a new horse on my hands and after a whole hour's time I discovered she wouldn't lead I was compelled to take the harness from one of my driving horses and hook her up as one of the team and lead my horse in back of the buggy.

"It was quite dark when I arrived home that night. I unhitched, put all the horses in the barn for the night. The next day Dick had just returned home and I always admired Dick's judgment and knowledge of horses. I suggested he try his luck at the horse trading game.

"He said he knew when he was well off and refused to accept my idea and further stated he didn't have any horses. I told him he would have a horse before he knew it.

"Dick came over to the barn and looking through the upper half of the door saw the Joliet mare and said: 'I see you got a new one' I, scenting a sale of a horse led her out. Dick looked her over while I was leading her around the yard. He said: 'I see she's polite, she speaks to every one. I notice she nods her head to everyone as she walks along.'

I replied 'Yes, she sneaks to them all.' Dick, after a moment's pause said 'Oh I will give you $10 for her' I said 'You own her.'

Dick was game and took her home. He kept her about two weeks and during that time the boys got wind of Dick's dealing in horses. They kept the telephone wires hot inquiring of Dick if he cared to buy or trade horses.

After a lot of premeditation on Dick's part, I succeeded in buying the mare back for $18. The same day I sold her to Jack for $25 and again I had completed another sale of this Joliet $4 mare. To my surprise after about four weeks had passed I was walking to the barn and lo and behold a man walked in the yard. I took the second look and it was none other than Jack leading the Joliet mare back home again.

"I said 'Well, Jack how is everything?' He replied 'Everything is ok but this thing, I can't use her any more and I want to sell her back to you. What am I offered?'

"I looked her over and she smiled with her eyes in a way that is familiar to all horse traders and again won my sympathy and renewed the friendship that is between man and horse.

I bought and paid $4 for her. Again she was at home. She seemed happy and contented for awhile. Then I noticed she had become down hearted and sad, so I felt sorry for her and then the thought struck me she was home sick for Joliet. I came to the conclusion that I should get her back to the city life as she longed for the noise of the day and the bright lights at night. She and I got ready and hurried back to Joliet and on arriving at the old horse market a kind appearing gentleman approached me on the subject of becoming her owner. I sold her for $15.00."

Those were the happy days of horse trading.

Yours truly,
YOU TELL IT AND I WRITE IT

The chicken dinner and apron bazaar held at the M. E. church parlors Tuesday night was well attended and was a very successful affair.

The Wabash has taken off five passenger trains as per the announcement made a week ago. Daily trains taken off are making it very inconvenient for the Orland commuters to get to and from their work in Chicago.

Alderman Harold Linney has taken the matter up with the Wabash officials relative to discontinuing the Sunday trains and restoring the daily trains. This proposition has been favorably looked on by the officials and it is probable that the change will be made beginning Sunday. The Sunday trains have been running at a loss inasmuch as few passengers patronized them.

TINLEY PARK

Mrs. Arthur Schoenck and Miss Winifred Hickey made a speedy trip to New York City the week end. Leaving Saturday morning at five o'clock they arrived in Pittsburg at 8:30 o'clock the same evening, making 600 miles in one day. They arrived at Hasbuck, N. J., Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. This city is across the river from New York.

They visited with the Reagan family, Mr. Reagan formerly being in charge of the Hearst Radio Station at Tinley Park.

The trip was made in a Chevrolet which had been nicknamed "a kid-dy car."

Richard Ryan says that Tinley Park at present is the largest distributing center for fishing tackle in the country.

An election was held at the Tinley Park school Saturday afternoon for the purpose of electing a school trustee for Bremen township. Winfield Roesner of Midlothian was elected. Opposing him were two other candidates.

Mrs. Minnie Brewer of the Elmore subdivision, south, is giving sewing instructions at the Tinley Park school under the supervision of the Board of Education and the P. T. A.

Mrs. Adeline Miller of Chicago is moving back to her old home place east of town.

Moving pictures in connection with the health week program were shown in the school auditorium the past week.

Mrs. Hickey entertained the Sewing Circle Wednesday afternoon.

The Nylander family have moved to Peoria where Mr. Nylander is in the employ of the Rock Island railroad. The many friends here of the Nylander's are sorry to see them go but wish them much happiness in their new home.

The village board will meet next Monday night. New committees for the ensuing year will be appointed by the mayor.

Irving Bacheller

For a quarter of a century the name of Irving Bacheller has been as familiar to millions of readers as their own—and as beloved by all. His strong and beautiful novels reflect all that was significant in our pioneer life, with its homely endeavor, its taciturn courage, and its incorrigible Yankee humor.

Irving Bacheller is a product of the "North Country" of which he writes. He was born in the village of Pierpont, N. Y., September 26, 1859. As a boy he roamed the woods, fished the lakes and streams and hunted the game then to be found on the mountain sides.

For a time he taught a "North Country" school, but his ambition was to write, and in the early eighties he went to New York where he secured a reportorial job on a Brooklyn paper. After a time he organized a newspaper syndicate. Then he became Sunday editor of the New York World. It was while he was on the World that the inspiration for "Eben Holden" came to him. He went back to the "North Country" to write it, and has since devoted his time exclusively to literature.

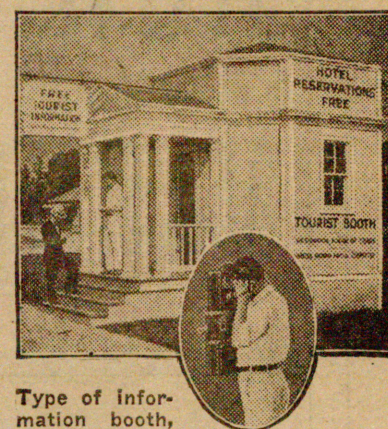

The countless readers who have followed Bacheller through the years and the new readers who are turning to him today will find that his pen has lost none of its old magic. In "The House of the Three Ganders" we see again the qualities that have made him the master-chronicler and interpreter of unspoiled America.

It will appear as a serial in these columns.

W.N.U. SERVICE

A Bacheller story of the "North Country" based on a trial famous in the legal annals of New York state. A typically human American story. The woodsy setting, the quaint customs and the highly humorous sayings of the countryside, the unconscious nobility of its steadfast people, all blend to make the distinctive flavor of a true Bacheller story.

'I am the Spring, the Spring, the Spring with laughter on my lips!'"

TO have a most delightful May Day Party the hostess need only contact the underlying gaiety which bubbles up in everything and everyone at this delicious time of year.

Let her fill her house with flowers—paper flowers will do nicely and the Ten Cent Store will prove an abundant source of supply. But as she must have hundreds of posies to scatter through living room, dining room, halls and chambers, she will do well to make some herself. They are surprisingly easy to fashion, and pamphlets on flower-making may be had at any stationer's. Scent the flowers with a bit of cotton dipped in a good violet water and thrust deep into their paper hearts.

Trills and Warblings

Singing birds may be borrowed for the evening—and a consideration—from a bird store or pet shop, and stood or hung about in their little wooden cages to further the illusion of a spring day with their trills and warblings.

Do not permit the guests to come empty handed—too many flowers are impossible at a May day party, so suggest that each participant do his bit—you might suggest it tactfully by wording your invitation like this—

Pink and white spring flowers
In a basket gay
Come bring them to a neighbor's house
● The first night in May!
P.S. The party begins at eight o'clock.

If you have a large room for dancing, rig up a May Pole in the center. It is easily done by means of a clothes pole thrust into a Christmas tree holder. Paint the pole a lovely color, a warm Italian pink for instance, and wind about it a garland of gay flowers and green leaves.

A Flower Hung Bower

In one corner of the room a little bower may be arranged for dispensing cool drinks to thirsty dancers, and the bower itself may be very pretty and decorative. Attach a three-cornered canvas to the picture molding in one corner of the room so as to form a small triangular-shaped booth—an old sheet will serve or a bit of striped awning cloth. Scallop the front edge and let it hang down a bit and festoon it with green leaves or flowers. Requisition one of your prettiest guests to "pour" and provide her with a plentiful supply of cool orange, grape fruit and pineapple juice. These fruit juices may be procured in tins and kept on the ice until the last minute and then served with plenty of cracked ice or with ginger ale frozen in cubes.

The May Day Supper

The May Day Supper should be a dainty feast served on a table laden with real spring flowers, and a little boutonniere should mark each place—and a flower cap snapper—the Ten Cent Store again. A delightful menu would be—

Cream of Mushroom Soup
Lobster Cutlets
Hot Biscuit
Jellied Fruit Salad
Macaroon Ice Cream in Baskets
Coffee

Lobster Cutlets: Make a thick white sauce of two tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, one cup milk, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Add one egg yolk, one teaspoon lemon juice and two cans lobster, minced. Let stand until quite cold. Shape into cutlets, dip in crumbs, egg and crumbs; fry in deep fat. Serve with tartar sauce. Makes eight cutlets.

Jellied Fruit Salad: Soak two tablespoons gelatin in one-fourth cup cold water five minutes. Drain juice from one No. 2½ can fruits for salad, and add enough water to make one and one-half cups. Heat to boiling, and add gelatin. Add two tablespoons lemon juice, and allow to cool. When ready to stiffen, add one-half cup mayonnaise and the fruit, left whole. Let set; serve on lettuce leaves. Serves eight.

Macaroon Ice Cream in Sponge Cake Baskets: Cut oblong pieces of sponge cake, and scoop out centers. Fill with ice cream. Tie pieces of variously colored ribbon about the little boxes with a bow on one side, and thrust a tiny flower through the bow. By baking the cake in a very thick sheet, handles may be cut in the baskets.

NEW LENOX

Miss Ramona Fink, Correspondent
Mrs. Alice Owen entertained the New Lenox Woman's Club in her home on Lincoln Highway, Wednesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Juliet Warner, presided over the business meeting. Mrs. Isabell Francis led the group singing which was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Aurelia Bruns, after which a salute to

Roby Auto Races
To Start May 8th

With the opening of the auto race season at the Roby-Chicago set for Sunday, May 8th the speed fans in the Chicago area will have a treat in store for them according to B. Ward Beam, manager of the newly remodeled mile speedway. Beam says that he expects new records to be made over the oval as it is in the best condition that it has been at any time and with Billy Arnold driving against a fast field the management believes that they have an ideal program that will satisfy all of the speed fans.

In addition to Arnold there are such stars as Gus Schraeder, Bill Cummings, Frank Brisko and Joe Russo already entered. It is expected that before the entries close there will be at least twenty-five well known drivers on hand.

Qualifying trials will be run to select the 12 fastest cars, these will be allowed to start in the feature events of the afternoon. The trials will be started at 10 o'clock and the races will start at 3 o'clock.

The admission price has been cut to $1.00 and it is expected that thousands of fans will take advantage of the low price. The management expects that the newly built grandstands will be crowded to capacity.

The "Experts"

"HIDDEN QUART"

The "experts" around the general store at Hooper, Nebraska, stuck their tongues in their cheeks when told that Conoco Germ Processed Oil actually penetrates and combines with metal surfaces. They jeered at the idea of a "Hidden Quart" up in the motor protecting the motor from damage when run with the crankcase drained.

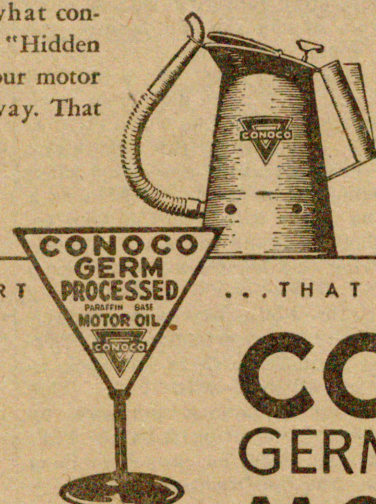

But a champion of Conoco germ Processed Motor Oil accepted their challenge, drained his crankcase and drove 16 miles without damage to the motor. The "experts" were convinced—their jeers changed to cheers!

What a test! And what convincing proof that a "Hidden Quart" stays up in your motor and never drains away. That always-present film that protected this car will cut down costly starting wear in your car, save you gas and give your motor longer life, with fewer repair bills. With Conoco Germ Processed Oil in your car, you'll drive with peace of mind, knowing you have the safest, surest lubrication.

Remember that only Germ Processed Oil penetrates and combines with metal surfaces. The next time you change oil, get Conoco Germ Processed Oil at the sign of the Conoco Red Triangle.

We neither encourage "dry crankcase" experiments nor guarantee success under all conditions. But unsolicited letters from motorists, now in our files, tell of this and hundreds of other runs with empty crankcases but without damage.

The Madonna of the Trail

The Pioneer Family

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

HE setting aside of one day in the year, the second Sunday in May, for special observance as Mother's Day has been a custom of comparatively recent development in this country but one whose sentiment has appealed strongly to all Americans. Similarly, the offering of tangible evidence of our debt of gratitude to one particular type of mother, who had so much to do with the building of our nation, the pioneer mother, has also come about only recently, but with a great abundance as though to make up for the former neglect by the very number of memorials to her.

An early American poet in paying tribute to "The Mothers of the West," once flung this challenge to his fellow-countrymen:

Their monument! where does it stand?
Their epitaph—who reads?
No braver dames had Sparta,
No nobler matrons Rome—
Yet who or lauds or honors them,
E'en in their own green home!
The Mothers of our Forest-Land!
They sleep in unknown graves:
And had they borne and nursed a band
Of ingrates, or of slaves,
They had not been more neglected!
But their graves shall yet be found,
And their monuments dot here and there
"The Dark and Bloody Ground."

Had this poet lived until now he would have found his answer in many places besides the "Dark and Bloody Ground" of Kentucky. He could be taken over the splendid national highway, known as the National Old Trails Road, and in twelve of the cities on that road—Bethesda, Md.; Washington, Pa.; Wheeling, W. Va.; Springfield, Ohio; Richmond, Ind.; Vandalia, Ill.; Lexington, Mo.; Council Grove, Kan.; Lamar, Colo.; Albuquerque, N. M.; Springerville, Ariz., and Upland, Calif.—he could be shown statues upon each of which is this inscription: "The Madonna of the Trail. N. S. D. A. R. Memorial to the Pioneer Mothers of the Covered Wagon Days."

Nor would this chain of memorials which link the Atlantic and the Pacific be the only monuments, erected to perpetuate the memory of the women who followed the star by destiny westward, which he could be shown. For recent years have seen an increasing number of individuals and patriotic organizations giving evidence of a determination to pay a tribute to the pioneer mothers of their communities or their states in some enduring form.

The earliest of these was the statue of "The Pilgrim Mother," the work of the distinguished American sculptor, Paul W. Bartlett, which was erected in Provincetown, Mass., in connection with the Pilgrim Tercentenary celebration in 1920. This same mother was also honored in the Pilgrim Memorial fountain at Plymouth, Mass., authorized by the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution in 1920 but not actually dedicated until 1925. Just as it was appropriate that the first memorial to a pioneer mother should be erected on the Atlantic coast, so it is appropriate that the latest one in 1928, should have been erected on the Pacific coast—in Vancouver, Wash.

In between, in both time and location, have been erected statues of the pioneer mother herself or statutory groups of a pioneer family in Worcester, Mass.; in Elmwood, Ill.; in Topeka, Kan.; in Kansas City, Mo.; near Ponca City, Okla.; in Wichita, Kan.; on the campus of the University of Oregon at Eugene; and there are under way projects for similar memorials in other cities and states.

In several cases there has been some dispute as to the appropriateness of the delineation of the pioneer mother by some of the sculptors commissioned to execute the memorials. Disagreements have arisen over details of costume and as to whether or not the pioneer mother should be shown holding a rifle, an axe, or a scythe, as a symbol of the era in which she lived. This was especially true when 12 of the leading sculptors of the country submitted models for the statue of the pioneer woman which E. W. Marland, the Oklahoma oil millionaire, proposed to erect on the famous Cherokee Strip in Oklahoma, the last government land opened to homesteaders.

The 12 different models were exhibited in a number of the leading cities of the country so that the public would be given a chance, by popular vote in each city, to aid Mr. Marland in making his selection. When the exhibit was held in Denver, Colo., it brought from Lee Taylor Casey, an editorial writer on the Rocky Mountain News, the following eloquent tribute to the subject of these models:

The Pioneer American Woman! Not one woman; the composite of many women it must be. Not one of our historic heroines, but an ideal woman, but not idealized away from her environment, that would never do; and it must not be attempted for the sake of pleasing the purely fastidious.

Think of that Pioneer American Woman! Conjure her in the brain; but first of all consider what confronted her. Go back and learn of her antecedents and what the years must have hammered into her soul and done to strengthen her body. She had been prepared in a hard school; not hardened or coarsened, but tempered, to bend and not to break.

One thing to be remembered in making the final selection: She had a Spirit Sense. She must have had in her the soul of a martyr. The Pioneer American Woman did not come solely for her gain. Always she was buoyed in her heart by the thought that she was in the service of a Higher Power, working in the Lord's vineyard—a bleak enough one as it turned out to be. She had the homesteading instinct and this need not be overlooked; desire for a home of her own and freedom. She was looking ahead, generations ahead, as what pioneer woman in her innermost soul does not, to sustain her? She must have had that far vision ingrained within her which is not given to the male; she envisaged herself in the future of the race that was to spring from her. The Pioneer Woman was not a motherless woman.

The Pioneer Woman of the West was the Daughter of the Pioneer Woman in America, dowered with the latter's courage, fortitude and resourcefulness. She was born to endure hardships; she was not afraid of the wide waste spaces and her intuition was to better those that came after as much as herself. She, too, had a perspective, a maternal perspective, if you please.

The models produced by the sculptors are varied and should give pleasure among them to a great number. Hardly needful to state, they are works of art beyond question from the salon and artistic points of view because the artists chosen are already famous. One model is delightful to look at in the photograph, but it is not a model of the Pioneer American Woman most Americans will have in their mind's eyes. A Puritan? An idealized one, maybe. One or two of the figures may not appeal because of their classicism, for the model to be chosen must be of itself American, not Greek or Italian. A noble-looking mother is to be found among the dozen. Several are armed.

The pioneer man has been sung of in plenty, too often the woman pioneer is forgotten; the heroics belong to the male, but his mate gave in pride and faith so that her sons and his might know what is the meaning of a man's life and a woman's spirit adventure.

"We take up the task eternal
And the burden and the lesson,
Pioneers, O pioneers!"

In the light of this writer's words: "She has a Spirit Sense . . . Always she was buoyed in her heart by the thought that she was in the service of a Higher Power, working in the Lord's vineyard—a bleak enough one as it turned out to be," it is interesting to note that the final selection for the Marland memorial was not that of a woman holding a rifle, an axe or a scythe. Instead it was a woman carrying under her arm a Bible!

As Mr. Casey says, one of the models, that of the Puritan woman ("The Pilgrim Mother Waves Farewell" shown above), is not the pioneer woman most Americans will have in their minds' eyes. But even though this woman, because of her garb, may not well represent the pioneer woman of other sections of the country and of other periods, the fact remains that the Pilgrim woman and the Puritan woman of Massachusetts were the first pioneer mothers and to them a special meed of honor is due.

A fitting tribute to them was paid at the dedication of the Pilgrim Memorial Fountain in Plymouth, Mass., in 1925 by Mrs. George Maynard Minor, honorary president general of the D. A. R. when she said:

On their monument we say: "They brought up their families in sturdy virtue and a living faith in God without which nations perish."

After daring the perils of the unknown ocean and the still more unknown land, after sharing with the men all the hardships and privations and sufferings of a voyage of weeks in a cockle-shell of a boat, and landing on a desolate and savage coast in the dead of winter, inhabited only by wild men and wild beasts, after experiences that might well overcome the hardest and most gallant nature, they settled down to the making of homes, with a faith in the daily presence and guidance of God which sustained them in every hour of need.

Through hunger and starvation, through sickness and death which exacted the toll of half their number, they toiled on and endured, looking only toward the goal of their high calling in Christ Jesus.

We hear far more about the Pilgrim Fathers than we do about the Pilgrim Mothers. While in no way wishing to detract from the rightful glory of the Fathers, nevertheless, it is time that the world realized the part that these women played in civilization. It is time that history took note of them. Rarely, if ever, are they mentioned by name, except in the genealogies, or by specialists in Pilgrim history. Their names, with few exceptions, are not household words in our tongues, like those of Miles Standish, or William Bradford and the rest. They figure only in the passenger list of the Mayflower and only as "Mary" or "Katherine," etc., wife of So and So. The family names of but few are given. The names of some are literally unknown, not even the baptismal name being recorded. These latter figure solely as the wives of the Fathers, without further identification.

We may read the tragic list for ourselves, The wife of John Tilly—who was she? By what name was she called in those terrific years of sorrow and suffering? The maid-servant of the Carvers—who was she? What faithfulness and courage must have been hers to follow her master and mistress into such an adventure. Yet her name is lost and her identity sunk in oblivion.

We have inscribed on our fountain all the names that are known; we have cut them into deathless stone, that all coming generations may read and remember. And we have so indicated the nameless that they may share in the immortality of the rest. Unknown soldiers of a future nation, we salute you!

Lesson for May 1

ISAAC AND HIS WELLS

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 26:12-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—A soft answer turneth away wrath: but grievous words stir up anger.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Isaac Follows His Father's Example.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Isaac Follows His Father's Example.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Stop Quarrels.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How World Peace is to Be Established.

Isaac was a child of the covenant and was given in the time of the old age of Abraham and Sarah, in fulfillment of God's promise. His name means "laughter." As to character, he was gentle, meek, meditative and peace-loving. He was a remarkable contrast to his father Abraham. Two things may have affected him to his disadvantage:

1. The shadow of an illustrious father. Sons of great and rich men commonly do not make much of life. The necessity of struggle is not forced upon them.

2. He was brought up as the only child of his mother. The tendency in such a case would be to shield him from the necessity of self-effort, so that he would be unable to meet life's stern realities. Every child should be compelled to think for himself and to fight his own battles.

1. Isaac in Gerar (vv. 12-17).

1. The appearance of the Lord unto him (vv. 1-5). Because of famine in the land, Isaac went into the country of the Philistines. The distress upon the land should have moved him to call upon the Lord (James 5:13). It were better to suffer in the land than to go among the enemies of God's people. The Lord graciously appeared to him there and directed him not to go into Egypt, thus avoiding the error of his father. He was permitted to sojourn in this land because it ultimately was to belong to his seed.

2. His lapse (vv. 7-11). He yielded to the same temptation as did Abraham many years before (Gen. 20:12, 13). This proves that it is not a good thing to dwell among the enemies of God's people. It was when Peter warmed himself at the fire of the enemy that he was tempted to deny his Lord.

3. His prosperity (vv. 12-17). Isaac did not intend to make Gerar his permanent place of abode. He intended only to sojourn there. While there he sowed and reaped bountifully. This prosperity was no proof that God approved of his course. God sends his rain upon the just and the unjust.

II. Isaac's Enemies (vv. 18-22).

He was not permitted long to enjoy this fruitful land. His prosperity incited the envy of the Philistines. They could not stand to see his increase in flocks, herds, and servants. Success in any calling of life will provoke envy. They demanded that Isaac should leave them. Wherever envy has begun its deadly work, there must be separation. The Philistines took as their method of getting rid of Isaac the stopping up of the wells. Isaac did not contend for them but peaceably withdrew to another place where he proceeded again to dig the wells of his father. He called them by the same names as his father had given them.

1. Esek, which means "strife" or "contention." Instead of struggling with them, he removed from them and digged another well.

2. Sitnah, which means "enmity." The Philistines strove for this well also. The name given shows that there was increased bitterness of feeling.

3. Rehoboth. Because of the bitter opposition, Isaac removed from them and digged another well which he called "Rehoboth," meaning "there is room." The third time he digged wells there was no strife. The way to have peace is to wear out our enemies with patience.

III. Isaac in Beer-Sheba (vv. 23-25).

Immediately following Isaac's going up from among the Philistines, the Lord appeared to him. Our fellowship and privileges as sons and daughters of God are dependent upon our separation from the world (II Cor. 6:14-18). Following this visitation, Isaac built an altar and called upon the name of the Lord. As soon as a meeting place with Jehovah was established, Isaac pitched his tent there. Following this Isaac's servants digged a well. There is no use of going among the Philistines to get water. After Isaac was established in Beer-sheba, Abimelech came desiring to make an alliance with him. This shows that he gained influence by peaceably withdrawing from the Philistines. His behavior proved to them that he was the friend of God.

STATE CAPITOL
NEWSHiram L. Williamson,
Secretary
Illinois Fringe Association

According to the state department of public health, the best places in Illinois to get typhoid fever are in the small communities of less than one thousand people. The next most favorable places for that disease are in communities of the 1,000 to 2,500 range. Farms rank third among places where the risk of typhoid fever is greatest. Last place is given to cities with over 200,000 population where the prevalence rate is only one-tenth of that in the small villages. Typhoid fever is three times as frequent among people under twenty-five years of age as among people over that age.

Dr. Charles Henry Rammelkamp, fifty-eight, president of Illinois college at Jacksonville, died at his home in that city on April 5, after a long illness. Doctor Rammelkamp was one of the most widely known educators in the central west. He served two terms as president of the Federation of Illinois colleges and held several honorary degrees. He was the author of several educational texts.

Elm tree wilt, mysterious foe of shade and nursery elms, is slowly giving ground before the combined control efforts of Illinois nurserymen and the State Natural History survey, according to L. R. Tehon, botanist of the survey. Nurserymen, desirous of preventing or minimizing recurring infection, will permit the survey to apply its program of control to their trees this year. John A. Trumbower, formerly of Iowa State Agricultural college, has been engaged by the survey until September 1 to do the spraying and pruning.

Hundreds of scientists from all parts of the state will assemble on May 6 and 7 for the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Illinois State Academy of Science, which will be held this year at the University of Chicago, bringing together the state's outstanding minds in the fields of anthropology, agriculture, botany, economics, geography, geology, medicine and public health, physics and chemistry, psychology and education, and zoology. The two-day sessions will comprise both general and sectional meetings as well as special inspection trips to the new oriental museum at the University of Chicago, the Field Museum of Natural History, the Adler planetarium, and the Shedd aquarium.

Delegates to the thirty-third annual meeting of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers to be held in the Faust hotel, Rockford, April 19, 20 and 21, will elect a president and vice president to serve two years each, and a secretary and 23 district directors to serve one year each. Mrs. Holland Flager, Chicago, president, will preside at the sessions of the convention. Mrs. Herbert W. Whitten, Carthage, is chairman of the nominating committee. There will be departmental conferences and dinners each day of the convention. Mrs. Clarence M. Dale, Rockford, director of district three, is chairman of general arrangements.

Announcement has been made by Secretary of State William J. Stratton that $4,267.39 has been earned in interest on the moneys collected during the quarter beginning January 1, and ending March 31, 1932. This amount has been paid into the state treasury, with an itemized statement showing the amount of interest earned during the quarterly period on each account in each bank.

The Alumni of Blackburn college at Carlinville will gather at their alma mater on June 7 to commemorate the twenty years that Dr. William M. Hudson has been president of the institution. President and Mrs. Hudson left the latter part of February for a six weeks' stay in Florida, where they are enjoying a much-needed and well-earned rest.

Officials of Century of Progress, Chicago's World's fair in 1933, are at work on plans to handle the vast crowds which will attend the exposition. Fifty million persons will attend the exposition and spend $25,000,000, according to an estimate of the officials. Fifty cents has been tentatively established as the admission price.

The alumni office of the University of Illinois has announced that Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley, Danville, and Robert F. Carr, Chicago, will head the two committees chosen to pick candidates for trustees of the university. The terms of Mrs. Laura B. Evans, Taylorville, Mrs. Helen M. Grigsby, Pittsfield, and Dr. William L. Noble, Chicago, as members of the board, expire next year.

At the annual conference of the Association of American State Geologists, held at Washington, D. C., recently, Dr. M. M. Leighton, chief of the Illinois state geological survey, was re-elected president of the national organization. Other officers chosen for the 1932 term of office are: Dr. George C. Branner, state geologist of Arkansas, secretary; and Dr. Arthur C. Bevan, state geologist of Virginia, member of the executive committee. Doctor Bevan was formerly on the staff of the University of Illinois.

An editorial which appeared in the Chicago Journal of Commerce has been re-printed and is being distributed by the Truth in Print, committee of the Illinois State Society of Optometrists. This editorial deals with alleged shyster ads of optical goods and brands hokum and fake in this business under the circumstances, with the health of the eyes involved, as a particular type of greed that is almost criminal.

Road construction and manufacture of road materials in Illinois this year is putting a $67,218,000 pay roll in the pockets of labor. The Chicago Motor club has announced that it has computed that portion of the state's appropriation of $79,680,000 for highway construction and maintenance in 1932 would go to workmen.

According to the state department of public health, the most prevalent of all epidemic diseases in Illinois is measles. It has spread generally through the state and while the disease usually is more prevalent in the spring than at any other season of the year, officials believe that the outbreak this season will be much smaller than usual. There has been a sharp decline in the cases of diphtheria.

According to Wayne Hummer, chairman of the Illinois advisory committee of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, confidence in the soundness of Illinois banks has been practically rehabilitated as a result of the workings of that corporation. Mr. Hummer says that the very realization that banks can go to the corporation and get the cash to carry them over the tough spots seems to have obliterated the need for such aid.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has appointed William H. Sexton, corporation counsel of Chicago, and George A. Barr, Joliet, president of the board of trustees of the University of Illinois, as members of the Illinois emergency relief commission. Edward L. Ryerson, Jr., chairman of the commission, announced that they would succeed Samuel Insull, Jr., and Col. A. A. Sprague, who tendered their resignations.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's annual "Public Health Week" proclamation has created an unusual interest in disease prevention and health promotion work. As the result of a united effort to direct public attention to the period between April 24 and May 1 as a week devoted to public health improvement, state health authorities have found that health week programs, now being formulated, are on the most ambitious scale of any planned in recent years. Speeches, radio broadcasts, motion picture presentations, immunization campaigns, playlets and demonstrations in the schools, exhibits and pageants are among the ways which will be employed to observe the occasion.

The state department of public health has announced the completion of its task of examining the 364 milk pasteurizing plants in Illinois, outside of Chicago, for 1932 certificates. Of those plants, 331 have been certified as having complied with the requirements of the law. As a part of the requirements for certifications, 3,077 employees of the milk pasteurizing companies have been medically examined since the first of the year.

E. H. Beechley, chief of the United States engineers in charge of the Illinois waterway project, has announced that virtually all the work has been completed at Lockport. Joliet's great link in the waterway has been pronounced more than 60 per cent complete. Ships from Chicago, even if they have as much as 9-foot draft, can now traverse the waterway as far as Lockport.

Less than a year ago the first contract was signed for industrial exhibit space in Century of Progress, Chicago's World's fair in 1933. Today the applied science and industry division has 117 signed contracts for special buildings and exhibit space in the total amount of approximately $3,000,000. About one-half of this amount is for special building to be erected for their own use and the expense of the exhibitors. The other half is for exhibit space.

Business Improvements.
According to Fred Lohmann, city engineer of Champaign, Ill., ten building permits were issued during March. Construction under the permits will amount to $4,995.

The Ford Motor company's Chicago plant has announced that 1,000 men were employed on April 11 and that the force will be increased to 3,500 within a few weeks.

Six hundred people are now turning out 6,000 pairs of shoes each day, six days a week, at the International Shoe company plant in Olney, Ill.

According to the Chicago Motor club, $67,218,000 of the state's appropriation of $79,680,000 for highway construction and maintenance in 1932 will go into the pockets of workmen employed on such projects in all counties of the state.

About 200 farmers and others interested in establishing a cheese factory at Illipolis, Ill., met in the high school auditorium recently and appointed a committee to meet with the Lions' club, which is sponsoring the project.

"TARGET KEPT US FROM GOING BEHIND!"

"I've got a warm feeling for Target Tobacco, though I don't happen to be a smoker myself."

"My husband switched to Target from ready-mades. He thought he wasn't going to like rolling his own. But now he says he'd never smoke any other kind. He tells me that Target is real cigarette tobacco, a blend of Virginia, Burley and Turkish tobaccos just like the ready-mades use. And he says that with those gummy papers you get free with Target, it's easy to roll a firm, round cigarette."

"I'll take my husband's word for all that, but I do know that we save real money every week. My husband rolls thirty or more cigarettes from each package of Target. And that means a big saving. Figure it out. Target is only 10 cents a package."

AND GET THIS: The U. S. Government tax on 20 cigarettes amounts to 6¢. On 20 cigarettes you roll from Target Tobacco the tax is just about 1¢. No wonder you get such value for a dime!

Economic Leaders Will Speak on Newspaper Hour

Outstanding economic problems of the day will be discussed in the National Farm and Home Hour Saturday, April 30, by L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central railroad, Benjamin M. Anderson, Jr., economist of the Chase National bank of the city of New York, and United States Senator Otis F. Glenn of Illinois.

The broadcast will be under the direction of the corn belt farm dailies, a group of daily agricultural newspapers which circulate principally among the larger producers of live stock. In the group are the Chicago Drivers Journal, Kansas City Drivers Telegram, Omaha Journal-Stockman, and St. Louis Daily Livestock Reporter.

Charles E. Snyder, editor of the Chicago Drivers Journal, will be in charge of the broadcast and will introduce the speakers who are to devote their attention to presenting for the farm radio audience discussions of existing economic conditions of the day.

The program promises to attract the attention of vast audiences particularly because it will bring before the NBC microphones three distinguished leaders in the economic world.

The program will be brought to listeners as part of the plan to feature the messages of practically every important agricultural organization in the country. The speakers were chosen by Mr. Snyder because of their long experience and contacts with our economic problems.

Concrete That Floats

A block of concrete floated on water, bobbing up and down like a cork, at the school of practical science, University of Toronto, recently, when Prof. G. R. Anderson, carried out an unusual experiment. Known as cellular concrete, this floating stone was made on a system, analogous to raising a bread with yeast. The cement, gravel, water and sand, were put into a mixer and a carbon dioxide forming chemical was added. The cement then set into a hard porous substance lighter than wood. Professor Anderson says it has remarkable resistance to sound.

American Amateur King

Among the four amateur kings who have "made" themselves in French colonies within three months is an American, while two are English, and the fourth the enterprising son of a German father and a Scotch mother. All are fairly well-to-do, and they opened their kingdoms with much pomp and ceremony.

Just the Scallops

The B family was enjoying a turkey dinner with all the "trimmings" and, of course, scalloped oysters were included. When they were passed to Kathleen, she was asked whether she would like to have some scalloped oysters. She replied: "Well, I don't care for the oysters, but I will have some of the scallops."

Trying to Start a War

"Some say Europe gave us the saxophone."
"Why stir up any more grudges?"

Heavy Burden

"You're looking downcast, old man. What's on your mind?"
"A piece of my wife's."

Where Does She Get Her "Pep?"

SHE doesn't look seventy. Nor feel that old. The woman who stimulates her organs can have energy that women half her age will envy!

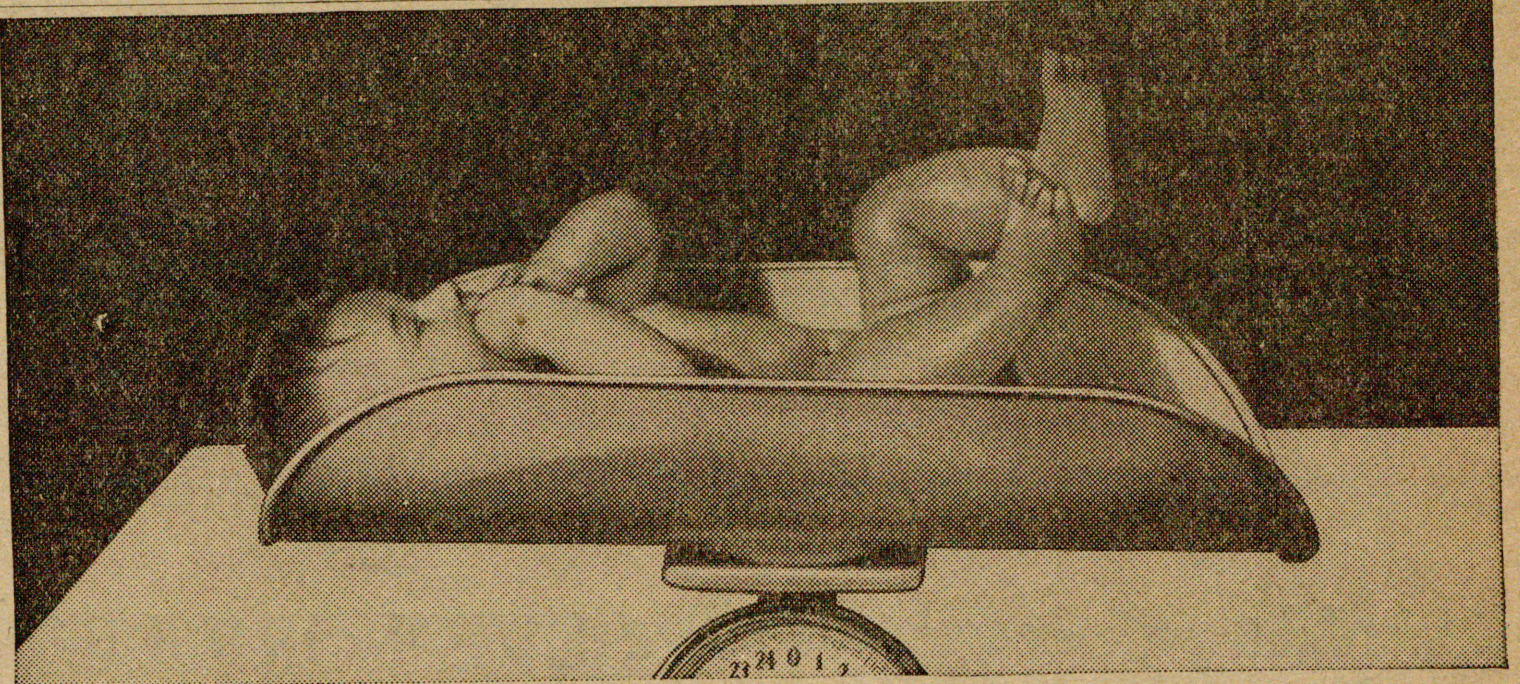

At middle-age your vital organs begin to slow down. You may not be sick, simply sluggish. But why endure a condition of half-health when there's a stimulant that will stir a stagnant system to new life and energy in a week's time?

This remarkable stimulant is perfectly harmless. It is, in fact, a family doctor's prescription. So, if you're tired of trying every patent medicine that comes along, tell the druggist you want a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a bit of this delicious syrup every day or so, until you know by the way you feel that your lazy liver is again active, and your bowels are poison-free.

Men, women, and children who are run-down, who tire easily, get bilious spells or have frequent headaches, are soon straightened out when they get this prescription preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh laxative herbs. (Syrup pepsin is all the help the bowels need, and you do not form the very bad habit of always taking cathartics.)

Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin in the house, and take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. It is all that a great many people ever take to keep strong and vigorous, and absolutely free from constipation.

To every mother who can't nurse her baby... NEWS!

When a mother's milk fails, nothing is more important than this—to be sure that the food that goes into her baby's bottle gives him just what he needs to make him rosy and healthy now, and build him a firm foundation for future health.

Test made with fifty babies

Recently, two physicians—specialists in baby diet—conducted a test with fifty average babies, to throw new light on this subject.

The food tested is one unique in infant feeding history. Next to mother's milk, it has raised more babies than any other food in the world. Over a period of 75 years, it has given millions their start in life. Throughout America, there are healthy babies, children, grown-ups, to prove the value of this amazingly digestible food.

Yet never before had scientists put this famous food—Eagle Brand Milk—to such a thorough, controlled, scientific test. What would such a test reveal?

Simple diet proves builder of 100% babies

For months, the two physicians fed those fifty babies on Eagle Brand—checking with closest care every detail of their health and growth. Bone structure was studied with the X-ray. Tooth development was watched. Weight and height were periodically recorded. Blood tests were made...

And those fifty Eagle Brand babies, judged by every known test, proved themselves splendidly nourished. This simple diet—Eagle Brand, with merely the usual supplementary foods—had proved equal to the building of a 100% baby.

Now, science joins the millions of mothers who say, "We have our proof that Eagle Brand Milk is a truly valuable and effective food for a baby."

If you cannot nurse your baby, try Eagle Brand. Easy to prepare—merely add boiled water. Always pure, safe, free from dangerous germs. Keeps indefinitely in any climate. Simple feeding directions are on the label.

*The usual supplementary foods, of course, are orange or tomato juice, and cod-liver oil or other source of the anti-rachitic Vitamin D.

New Lenox Lutheran Church
Rev. Paul E. Schauer

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ingram of Root St., New Lenox are the proud parents of twins born April 10. Mrs.
Ingram was formerly Miss Nichols of Tower Hill, Ill. The twins are boys. Their names will be Richard Milton and Donald Lauren. They were born at Silver Cross hospital, Joliet.

The choir of the St. John English
Lutheran church of Joliet was entertained at the home of Melvin Schroeder of New Lenox on Thursday evening. Luncheon was served.

WHY PAINT
YOUR HOME SO OFTEN?

Perhaps that question does seem strange, coming from a paint dealer. Nevertheless, we know that you won't have to paint so often if you use LOWE BROTHERS
HIGH STANDARD House
Paint. For HIGH STANDARD is a paint that stays new and bright much longer than paints of inferior quality which can be bought at lower price;

And of course, a paint that stays nice for an extra number of years, cuts many dollars from the per year cost of a paint job.

Come in, and let us give you a free copy of LOWE BROTHERS book on Home Decoration. By all means, see us
before you paint.
